Statistical pan-genomics

Laurent Jacob[*1]

[1]Laboratoire de Biométrie et Biologie Evolutive UMR5558 (LBBE) – Université de Lyon, Université Claude Bernard - Lyon I, Université de Lyon – UMR CNRS 5558 - LBBE "Biométrie et Biologie évolutive" UCB Lyon 1 - Bât. Grégor Mendel 43 bd du 11 novembre 1918 69622 VILLEURBANNE cedex, France

Résumé

As the number of sequenced genomes increases, the single string is rapidly becoming an ill-suited approximation, discarding accessory genes, rearrangements and repeated regions. I will discuss genome representations which are well suited to statistical analysis when genomes cannot be aligned or even assembled.

[*]Intervenant